"To promote appreciation, understanding and stewardship of wetlands and coastal ecosystems through our programs in research, education and conservation."

Are you ready for the Super Natural?

Summer 2009

Naturalist Intern

Are you ready to sink waist-deep into a fast-paced environmental education program? Want to learn a wide range of new skills in a variety of diverse habitats? Are you prepared to spend your days basking in sunlight, wading through marshes, swimming in the ocean, and reveling in the best Mother Nature has to offer?

If being wet, muddy, and happy at day's end sounds like your dream job, then we want you at the Wetlands Institute. Interns will help lead programs for all ages, work directly with a variety of live marine animals, teach outreach programs, and work on a variety of other programs and special events to promote the Jersey Shore and its spectacular salt marshes to tourists and residents. Interns work 40 hours per week (some weekends and evenings required), a weekly stipend will be given, and onsite dormitory housing is available. Reliable transportation is required. This internship is designed to introduce you to the interpretive profession and further your career, all while you explore one of America's most incredible natural areas. To apply, send your resume and cover letter to Phil Broder, Director of Education. Application deadline is February 15, 2009.
